IB Audio License agreement

None of the music on the IB Audio site has been registered with any PRO (performing rights organization) and as such is free from any PRO license fees (e.g. PRS, ASCAP, BMI, PPL etc...)

All the music is copyright © IB Audio. IB Audio owns ALL the rights to the music.

You are granted the non-transferable right to synchronize the music into your production under the following agreement.

Cue sheets

If you are requested to file a cue sheet for your productions please use the following composer information along with the corresponding music title:

Composer - Ian Blumfield
Company - IB Audio

Please note that filing a cue does not cost you anything and will not incur any extra fees for using the music, this is purely for broadcast usage.

Basic outline of acceptable usage

- You may use our music for commercial and non-commercial use
- There are no limits on the number of copies you can make of your productions that include IB Audio music
- The license covers broadcast and theatrical usage
- Territory is worldwide
- License term is indefinitely
- Use for Music on hold and in-store promotions
- Public performance
- iPhone Apps (not ringtone apps)
- Use in Film, Tv, iPhone games, presentations, YouTube videos etc...

What you cannot do with our music

You cannot simply re-sell IB Audio music as a music only product. It must be incorporated into a production where the music plays a supporting role to the main production.

You are not allowed to create derived works from our music. This means that if you are a singer or music producer you cannot add your own instruments or voice and treat the music as your own. This is known as creating derived works and not allowed under our standard license agreement.

Crediting

If you are able to add a credit to your production we would greatly appreciate the recognition, but it is not strictly necessary.
